“The NCD Alliance welcomes the significant progress being made on tobacco control outlined in the WHO’s new report but it’s clear that there is a long way to go if we are to reduce the many unnecessary tobacco related illnesses and premature deaths still occurring globally”, said Alison Cox, Director of Policy and Advocacy at the NCD Alliance.

“Raising taxes is one of the most effective measures, that offers governments a triple win of reducing tobacco consumption, saving lives and healthcare costs, while raising much needed revenue. So, it is a concern raised in the Report that there is reluctance by so many countries (134) to make the price of cigarettes less affordable. It’s why the NCD Alliance has been so vocal around ensuring that tobacco taxes - and other taxes around alcohol and ultra processed food - are front and centre of the Political Declaration on NCDs to be adopted at the UN General Assembly in New York this coming September.”

The World Health Organization (WHO) today released its report on the Global Tobacco Epidemic 2025 at the World Conference on Tobacco Control [2] in Dublin, warning that action is needed to maintain and accelerate progress in tobacco control as rising industry interference challenges tobacco policies and control efforts.

The report focuses on the six proven WHO MPOWER tobacco control measures [3] to reduce tobacco use, which claims over 7 million lives a year:

- Monitoring tobacco use and prevention policies;
- Protecting people from tobacco smoke with smoke-free air legislation;
- Offering help to quit tobacco use;
