

NCDs in Brazil: First civil society report available now in English

Langue Anglais

The first “Civil Society Report on the Situation of NCDs in Brazil” recently launched by the Alliance for Tobacco Control \(ACT+\) [1] is now available in English.

The report assesses the implementation of the national plan for tackling NCDs and calls for an integrated approach towards the epidemic.

A recent survey carried out by ACT+ has revealed vast support for national policies to reduce alcohol abuse and unhealthy food consumption, following the model of tobacco control measures in place.

“85% of people surveyed supports national regulations and think that advertising of cigarettes, alcoholic beverages and high-fat foods is a way for manufacturers to increase consumption and sale of these products”, highlights ACT+.

The organization called for more awareness-raising campaigns amongst young people on the risks factors [2] of NCDs.
