

World Cancer Day 2016

I CAN

UNDERSTAND THAT EARLY DETECTION SAVES LIVES

I CAN

SUPPORT OTHERS

I CAN

ASK FOR SUPPORT

I CAN

TAKE CONTROL OF MY CANCER JOURNEY

I CAN

LOVE, AND BE LOVED

I CAN

BE MYSELF

I CAN

RETURN TO WORK

I CAN

SHARE MY STORY

I CAN

SPEAK OUT

Langue Anglais

Today on World Cancer Day 2016 (Thursday 4 February), the world unites against this disease that knows no borders and represents one of humanity's most pressing and financial concerns.

Under the campaign theme 'We can. I can', World Cancer Day represents a unique opportunity to draw attention to what can be done to address cancer, save millions of avoidable deaths and, in turn, support global economic growth and development.

Cancer will kill more than eight million people worldwide this year, which is equivalent to the entire population of New York. Half of these will be people of working age (30-69 years old).

It has been estimated that the cost implications on world economies caused by cancer and the other non-communicable diseases (including mental health) could be as high as USD 47 trillion¹ if no action is taken to reduce the anticipated growth in cases over the next two decades. This is a greater economic impact than the global financial crisis of 2008 and represents 75% of global GDP.

Read Union for International Cancer Control \(UICC\) [1] press release here [2]

For live updates follow #WeCanICan #WorldCancerDay

Post Date: Thursday, 4 février, 2016

Tags: cancer [3]

world cancer day [4]

Category - News: World Days

Source URL: <https://old.ncdalliance.org/fr/node/8257>

Liens

[1] <http://www.uicc.org/>

[2] http://www.ncdalliance.org/sites/default/files/files/WCD2016_Press-Release_FA_EN.docx

[3] <https://old.ncdalliance.org/fr/category/tags/cancer>

[4] <https://old.ncdalliance.org/fr/taxonomy/term/141>